

Women Are Weaker Than Men

Why is it that there are reserved seats for females, elders & differently abled in buses?
Is it because we respect women like other things or is it something else?

Why is there a popular custom that only men pay the bill after meals?
Is it because men are rich or is it something else?

Why are men supposed to carry or try to take the shopping bags from females while shopping?
Is it that men like to serve them or is it something else?

Why when going out most of the time is it men who drive, even when the women sitting as passengers can drive well?
Is it because men don't want to give stress to women or is it something else?

And many other such examples which we can observe around us in our daily lives...

Do you know why?
Is it because we as a society thinks women are weaker than men...?

And due to this reason, which starts by giving privilege (which initially looks & feels very nice and comforting)
It turns into something which starts feeling that women are less competitive than men.
As we can see that in corporates women are valued & paid less than their male counterparts.

How is this possible? Now hardly there is anything which requires muscle power (which men claims to have more by nature)
then how come women are being valued less than men?

Is this societal trend of giving these tiny so called privileges to women.. can be a reason behind that?

We need to think on it...
